◆ MESSAGE FROM DIRECTOR

April brings with it not just the warmth of spring but also the promise of new beginnings. As our school reopens, we step into a fresh academic year with open hearts and eager minds, ready to learn, grow, and lead.

This month, our focus turned to Mother Earth, as students participated in the Earth Echo Slogan Competition, Eco-Slogan Model Making, and the Plant a Sapling Activity. These weren't just events—they were powerful reminders that even the smallest hands can plant the biggest change. Let us carry forward this spirit of action, creativity, and environmental care throughout the year. Together, let's nurture not only young minds but also the world they will inherit.

Here's to a year full of discovery, purpose, and positive change.

MODEL OF A TRADITIONAL VILLAGE HUT

This beautiful craftwork created by a Avika Nagar of Class VI, showcases a miniature hut model, made entirely using eco-friendly and recycled materials. The structure features a circular hut with a conical thatched roof, designed using neatly rolled brown paper sticks, giving it a realistic and rustic appearance. The base includes a small fenced yard, a water feature resembling a tiny pond, and green plant decorations, adding a touch of natural scenery to the model. An archway at the entrance with the student's name adds a personalized charm. The use of symmetry, clean placement, and natural colors shows the student's creativity, attention to detail, and craftsmanship. This model represents a traditional rural dwelling and reflects the student's understanding of simple village architecture. It's an excellent example of how everyday materials can be transformed into impressive art through imagination and effort. Such hands-on projects not only foster creativity but also enhance spatial and design skills in young learners.
